2004 RCHS grad killed, dumped

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A 21-year old former West Sacramento man was found dead on Tuesday, June 26, in a rural area between Winters and Davis. The body of Ryan Joseph Pimental, who went by the nickname "Opie," was found by a county agricultural employee checking flytraps on Russell Boulevard about a mile east of County Road 92F.

Lieutenant Jeff Monroe of the Yolo County Sheriff's Department reports that Pimental was identified by his thumbprint – and that Pimental was apparently left at the site after being killed elsewhere. The coroner's office listed the cause of death as a blunt force injury to the forehead.

At about 12:30 a.m. Friday, investigators arrested Christopher Allen Buchanan, 22, at his Sacramento home on a murder charge. Buchanan was also arrested on felony warrants including assault with a deadly weapon and grand theft.

Buchanan and Pimental knew each other, according to two West Sacramento residents acquainted with both. Buchanan and Pimental were also both members of the River City High School Class of 2003 (Pimental actually graduated in 2004).

Lt. Monroe believes the killing occurred at Buchanan's home.

"It happened at the suspect's residence," said Monroe. "They got into some kind of an argument."

Investigators are not looking for other suspects in the crime, he added.

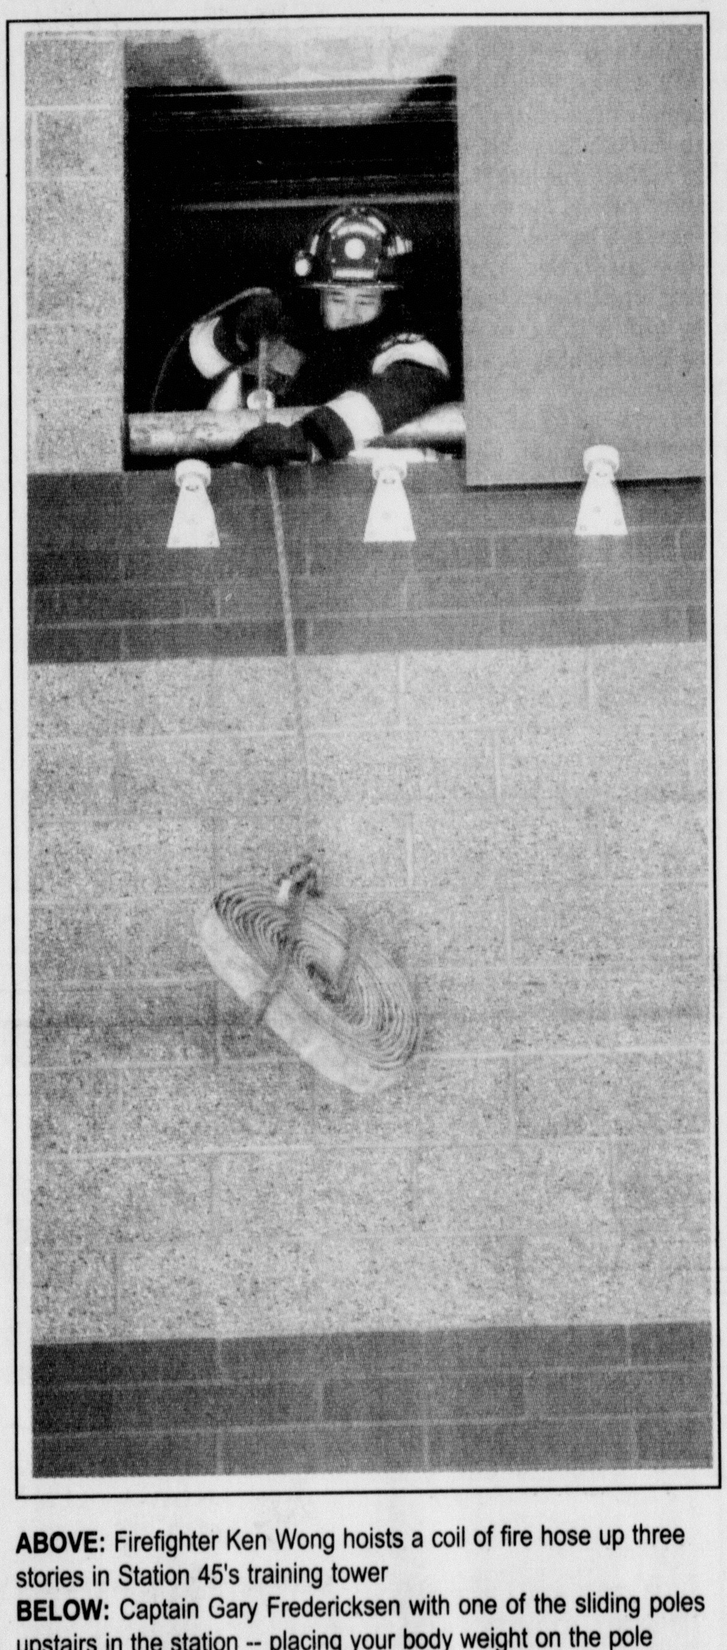

The two people acquainted with Pimental and Buchanon told the News-Ledger that the site where the body was found had been burned, but Monroe declined to comment on those reports. The two also described Pimental as sometimes-troubled, but gentle with others.

A close friend of Pimental, River City High classmate Joe Archambeault, reported that Pimental had recently been living in the Sacramento area.

"He was a kind and generous person," said Archambeault of his friend. "He was the truest friend you could have, and he'd do anything he could to help you or give you a shoulder to cry on if you needed it."

New firehouse -- the city's first since 1970 -- has features not found in other local stations

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento residents are invited to check out the city's new firehouse this Saturday – and it's a safe bet many of them will find the new facility pretty nifty.

The 28,000-square foot building on Lake Washington Blvd. (near Jefferson Blvd. and the Nugget center) has room for the fire department's administrative offices as well as a police service center, a full complement of firefighting equipment and personnel, and space for training and fitness work.

The police service center is located just inside of the station's front door.

"It's a service center where the police officers can come in and to their reports at the end of their shift," explained Captain Gary Fredericksen of the West Sacramento Fire Department. "It allows them to stay in the Southport area. There will be limited hours during the week for citizens to come in and file reports, too."

The police center isn't up and running yet. But the administrative offices are staffed – with room for future expansion – and the fire station began answering fire calls in early June.

"The engine company has three personnel, there's a truck company which has three personnel, and there's an on-duty chief out of here," explained Fredericksen. "So there are a total of seven people that live here day in and day out."

The on-duty firefighters live in an upstairs dormitory. Near the bunks are a lounge with a TV, a generous-sized kitchen, a study area, restrooms and showers, and a couple of the traditional brass poles that will deposit them in the vehicle bay in a matter of seconds. Firefighters work a 24-hour-on, 24-hour off pattern with several days of rest, in a pattern that averages out to 56-hour work weeks. Most of the station's facilities serve male firefighters, but a separate and smaller dorm area and restroom are available for women firefighters.

The kitchen's appliances automatically shut off when a fire call comes in, so firefighters aren't left asking each other "did you remember to turn off the stove?" while en route to a call. And a venting system in the vehicle bay switches on when a call is received, blowing truck exhaust out of the bay doors.

Downstairs near the truck bay is a "turnout room," where each staff member stores his firefighting gear. That room automatically vents out into the building's exterior.

"Basically, the turnout gear is always going into a bad environment," explained Fredericksen. "They're always off-gassing after a fire call. Here, though, we also have a policy that the guys have to wash them after every fire. They can smell pretty bad otherwise."

Behind the station is a three-story tower that sees use for training.

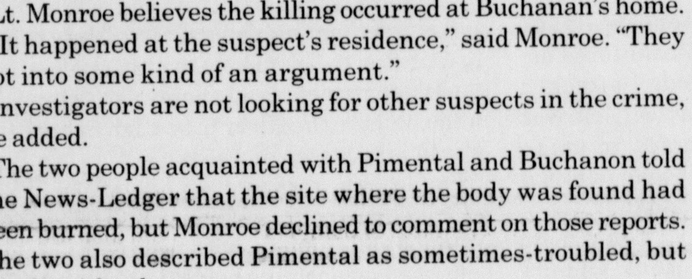

"We have a tower out back," said Fredericksen. "We can throw ladders up and 'rescue' people out of the windows. We can pull hoses up there. We have dummies weighted at 200 pounds that we work with."

Fire trucks need to be able to pump 1,500 gallons of water per minute, and the new station has a 20,000

WUSD sees solid budget picture -- 'knock on wood'

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento's school district looks forward to a "break-even" annual budget with increasing cash reserves next year – as long as the state government doesn't pull any fast ones with its funding, and as long as enough kids enroll in local public schools next fall.

Miles Billheimer, an assistant superintendent for Washington Unified School District, gave school board members that message last Thursday. He also gave the board an explanation of the timeline involved in the district's budget-writing process, and explained that a lot of needed information won't be coming until after the state finishes its own budget process, and after local schools find out how many pupils

Pulling weeds at River City High School

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

For many years now, I have been going on long walks in the West Sacramento neighborhood I have called home for almost three decades. I usually try to get my walk over early in the morning before I have to go to work, but on days when I just can't seem to force myself out of my warm bed, I try to take an evening stroll after dinner, when the heat of the day has finally begun to fade away. Lately, the mornings have been nice and cool and the evenings have been blessed with a wonderful sea breeze, so going for a leisurely walk in either the morning or the evening has been a joy -- with one big exception -- which brings me to my little story.

I live only a couple of blocks away from River City High School and sometimes, rather than wander aimlessly from street to street on my walks, I just go on over to the high school and quick-step it around the track for an hour or so. Not only does it bring back fond memories of the long ago days when I was a member of the James Marshall High School track team, but it also allows me to calculate exactly how far I have walked. Two or three miles is usually plenty for me, but unfortunately, that is also plenty of time to see in great detail the lack of attention our school district pays to River City High School's athletic fields.

I won't even go into all the gopher holes waiting for a River City High School student or athlete to step in and break an ankle, or all the basketball hoops without decent nets, or the decrepit football bleachers that desperately need to be replaced (or at least painted). Instead, I will simply talk about weeds.

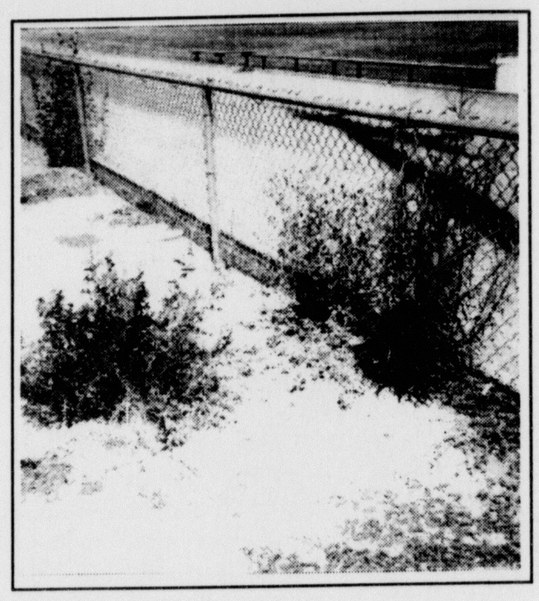

I have always hated weeds! They pop up where they don't belong, they stay around for as long as no one cares, and they come in all different kinds of hideous shapes, sizes, and smells. And everywhere one looks on or near River City High School's athletic fields, there are weeds. They are at the entrance to the football field where you get your ticket for a game; they engulf the girl's varsity softball dugouts; they stand like ugly sentries around the school bus parking lot and the Maintenance, Operations and Transportation (MOT) back portables; they are all along the wire fences which separate the grandstands from the football field; and they are even in and under the stands themselves. But worst of all is the outfield fence on the varsity baseball diamond. It has huge weeds growing up on both sides of it, some high enough that they will soon be blocking out the business banners of some of the local sponsors who support River City's baseball Raiders. And while most baseball fields have a well-manicured dirt warning track so racing outfielders chasing down fly balls won't go crashing into walls, River City has nothing but a warning track full of thick weeds.

Anyway, as I was observing all of the above the other evening while I was strolling around the high school track and grounds, a name suddenly popped into my head -- Leonard Triboli. Now for those of you who don't know Leonard, he is an energetic, longtime West Sacramento resident who hates litter in much the same way I hate weeds -- only he does something about it. For years now, he has been spending a few hours, two or three times a week, picking up trash and other debris he finds by the Westacre Road underpass. He looks upon his efforts as simply doing his small part to take better care of the earth we all inhabit, and his local beautification work has been acknowledged by the City of West Sacramento and mentioned before in this newspaper.

AM I THE ONLY ONE WHO THINKS THIS LOOKS TERRIBLE?
TOP: Weeds and trash at the school bus parking lot
TOP RIGHT: More weeds, around the ticket booth at the entrance to the River City High School football field
RIGHT: And yet more, around the high school's track

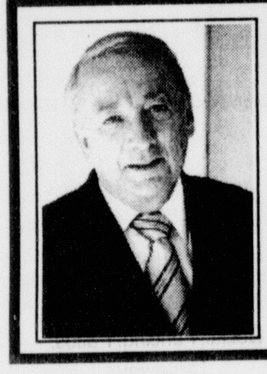

So, using Leonard as my guiding light, I hurried home, got out my weeding gloves, shoved them in my back pocket, and back to the high school I went. And a couple of hours later, I had actually made a small dent in getting rid of some of the ugliest, nastiest weeds River City has to offer.

And we're not talking your normal little garden weeds here! The weeds I was trying to pull out by the roots had obviously been there for months -- maybe years -- and some of them were tall enough to look me in the eye. Many of them had made their home in concrete cracks and looked like they would need a jackhammer to dislodge. Others had spread out so far on the ground that they appeared to be mutated species I had never encountered before. And one of the taller weeds I attacked near the front entrance of the football field was so big and hardy it even seemed to make wounded animal noises when I began yanking on it.

You know, back when I was on the school board, I learned that the Washington Unified School District has a huge maintenance budget, with hundreds of employees who have been hired to keep the district up and running and looking like a place where kids might actually want to be during the school year. And it also seems like a month hardly passes nowadays without the district hiring a new administrator of one kind or another, most of whom are incredibly well-paid, and you would think that one of them would have the energy to pick up a phone, call someone over in the maintenance department, and simply say, "Hey, why in the hell are the River City High School athletic fields covered in weeds?"

Who knows, maybe even one of the school board members knows how to make that kind of phone call? I mean, with yet another school bond measure coming before local voters soon, you would think that the school district and its trustees would be interested in convincing taxpayers that they are actually capable of taking care of the facilities they already have, not to mention the new ones they want us to build for them.

Anyway, I don't think I will hold my breath waiting for such a phone call to be made, so in the days to come, I plan on doing some more weeding over at River City. But unlike Leonard, who wants no attention drawn to his West Sacramento beautification efforts, I'm hoping that maybe my pulling of weeds at the high school will lead to one of those nice little plaques that the school district hands out from time to time. Or better yet, one of those fancy City of West Sacramento proclamations that Mayor Cabaldon signs with his very own hand. At the very least, I think I will find out what the new minimum wage is, keep track of my hours, and see if somewhere down the line I can get the school district to cut me a check.

SPORTS

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

By Richard Novoa

The 2007 Major League All-Star game is next week on Tuesday, July 10th at AT& T Park in San Francisco and with a surprising last minute flurry of Internet voting, Barry Bonds edged out Alfonso Soriano of the Chicago Cubs for third in the N.L. outfield voting. Bonds received 2,325,391 while Soriano tallied 2,202,513 votes.

The All-Star classic is still the only major league sport that has a competitive all-star game for the fans to enjoy. Major League baseball insures the players will play to win because the outcome of the game determines the home-field advantage in the World Series.

Another interesting note in this years All-Star selections is the fact that the fans are selecting more international players with 5 out of the 8 starters in the American league representing Latin American countries while Japan's Ichiro rounds out the international flavor. In the National League, Dodgers catcher Russell Martin represents Canada and Mets players Jose Reyes and Carlos Beltran are also from Latin counties.

It's great to see the fans vote for old time favorites like Ken Griffey Jr. and Barry Bonds, who was elected to start for the 12th time and will make his 14th overall appearance making him the oldest player ever to start an All-Star game!

Diamond Notes

The Giants June swoon (9-18) ended on a position note with Bonds making the All-Star game and rookie pitcher, Tim Lincecum posting a career high striking out 12 in his seven inning shutout over Arizona. Bonds magic home run number is now at 6.

The Oakland A's only representative in the All-Star classic is 10 game winning pitcher Dan Haren. Haren's ERA leads the A.L. and the ex-River Cat hasn't lost a decision since April 7th. Speaking of losers, the A's released bad boy Milton Bradley and now the talented outfielder in on the disabled list with San Diego.

Kings Korner

The Kings' selection for a new coach this season was a little bit of a surprise but if anybody can wake up these lazy guys, ex-Kings player, Reggie Theus can do it. The players will respect him in every sense of the game because Theus has performed well in the NBA and understands and can communicate with these young men, something Musselman couldn't do.

In draft news, the Kings used their 10th overall pick to select 7-foot center, Spencer Hawes from the University of Washington. The 19 year-old was a Pac-10 All-freshman team selection so time will tell if this young man turns out to be the Kings replacement for Brad Miller or he becomes the next coming of Joe Kleine!

Korner Kicks

The United States National Soccer team captured the 2007 CONCACAF Championship trophy by outplaying the Mexican national team 2-1 in front of over 60,000 pro-Mexico fans in Chicago. The USA battled back from a 1-0 halftime deficit to stun Mexico again.

Mexico hasn't been able to beat the US on American soil in nine tries but now both teams are guests in the Copa America in Venezuela. Mexico is doing fine after upsetting Brazil 2-0 and Ecuador 2-1 while the Americans, playing without 7 starters, lost to Argentina 4-1. The tournament continues this week with the USA playing on Monday against Paraguay and Colombia on Thursday. The first and second place finishers move on to the second round. You can watch the Copa America on Univision (ch.19 or ch.64).

Between the Ropes

This week it's really not between the ropes but inside the cage as UFC 73 Stacked invades the Arco Arena on Saturday, July 7th with an outstanding Pay-Per-View card that features Tito Ortiz against undefeated Rashad Evans and middleweight & lightweight title bouts.

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

gallon tank underground to facilitate those tests.

"Before that, we had to go to Sacramento for that," said Fredericksen.

The new station also fills a geographical hole in the service provided by the local fire department. The city has another fire station farther south, as well as three more north of the barge of the canal. But the area in the northern part of Southport – such as the Gateway Drive area – wasn't very close to any of them.

"By putting in a second Southport station, we're dividing (Southport) in half," said Fredericksen. "Response times that were seven or eight minutes are going to be half of that."

West Sacramento firefighters were among those who helped out at the devastating Tahoe-area fire last week – a disaster that claimed over 200 homes.

"We sent seven firefighters to Tahoe," Fredericksen recounted. "Now (on Monday) it's 85 percent contained. Our crews came back last Thursday. It went well – they worked the first three days very hard on the line. The fire burned very hot. Usually after homes burn, you have garbage and stuff left over. This was like a war zone. Everything was burned very hot and very clean. Some of the younger guys had never seen a fire like that."

Care to visit the new fire station?

A grand opening is scheduled at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, and doors will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at 2040 Lake Washington Boulevard. The best way to enter is to take Stonegate Drive to Lake Washington Boulevard, then turn west to the station's parking lot. For more information, call 617-4600.

West Sacramento is my first Choice!

Do you ever wonder how businesses come up with their names? Many people think a business owner will sit down with a highly paid advertising or marketing guru and do tons of research to come up with the magic words. Yet many times it's a process so simple it leaves you wondering, "Why didn't I think of that?" That is the story of Choice Mortgage in West Sacramento. I'm Lori Heavin and I'm the owner of Choice Mortgage and have been for nearly a decade now. The owner that is, I've been Lori for a little longer than that.

Established Since: 1992 CMC

So the story goes, when I decided to open my own mortgage business, the first thing I asked was, "What do I call this business?" A friend and I sat down and tossed around countless names and then she said, "Lori, your name will be Choice Mortgage." I said, "Really?" She replied, "Yes, and it's not just that you will be the customer's choice but it's your choice to serve the people of your home town." Next came the, "Why didn't I think of that?"

If you're looking at financing a new home or refinancing your current residence, doesn't it make sense to work with someone who knows your area as well if not better than you? Most of the people I work with, from office employees to appraisers have been with me the whole way. I was raised in West Sacramento and have spent half my 30 years in the loan business right here. So, don't you find yourself saying, "Why didn't I think of that?" when it comes to financing the most important transaction of your life. I'm Lori Heavin and Choice Mortgage is right here in West Sacramento, right where we belong.

Last call for a 'free' building permit

For limited time, West Sacramento will waive the fees on home improvement building permits

From Art Schroeder
City of West Sacramento

The city of West Sacramento is extending the "Home Improvement Holiday" special permit program to July 31. The city has received approximately 85 permit applications, but is about $5,000 short of the $20,000 budget amount set aside for the program. The city's Building Division will continue to issue special permits until July 31 or when the budget allocation is fulfilled, whichever event occurs first.

The "holiday" encourages residents to make qualified home repairs, remodels or upgrades that improve the comfort of their homes and increase property values. The program applies to minor permits such as central air and heating, re-roofing, stucco or siding, home exteriors, fencing, portable spas, electrical repairs, water or sewer lines, and residential additions (not to exceed 250 square feet.) The city also requires that:

- Homes be owner-occupied;
- Permits must be applied for over-the-counter at the city's Building Division;
- One permit per location; and
- Work shall be finished, inspected and approved within a 180-day period.

In addition to having their building fees waived, permit-holders qualify for price discounts from the following West Sacramento businesses: Hollywood Hardware, 1551 Merkley Ave., and Supply Hardware, 660 Harbor Blvd. Please show the special permit to receive discounts ranging from 15- to 20-percent on selected supplies and materials. Please see the store for details.

Information about the program is contained in a special brochure available from the city's Building Division at the Civic Center, second, 1110 West Capitol Ave. The brochure is also available online at www.cityofwestsacramento.org (see Community Development under "departments" and go to the Building Division Home Improvement Holiday link).

For more information about the Home Improvement Holiday, call the city's Building Division, (916) 617-4683.

$1.7 million to help River Walk Park

West Sacramento has received $1.7 million from state's Resources Agency to help expand River Walk Park from the Tower Bridge south to the "Triangle" area, reports the city's public information office.

The grant is part of $32.7 million earmarked for statewide use by Proposition 50. West Sacramento's share will help provide trails to the riverfront, disabled-accessible ramps, restoration of riverfront habitat, benches and lighting.

West Sacramento City Councilman Bill Kristoff attended the ceremony at which the grants were announced.

"This award is part of what the city is doing to guarantee permanent public access to the riverfront," he said in a city press release. "There will be more improvements coming."

Construction could begin as soon as summer next year.

Last year, a similar $1 million grant helped extend River Walk park north to the I Street Bridge. Eventually, River Walk will cover 3.5 miles.

show up to school. The explanation drew compliments from several board members and members of the public.

"Any number of variables can throw us into a deficit," said Billheimer. "We're just so close to the line here."

The district has about $56 million in combined "restricted" and "unrestricted" funds, but state officials could take away some of that as they finish their own budget. WUSD officials also hope to have about the same number of enrolled students this year as last – with about 120 new kids making up for about 120 who will leave for the city's first charter school. Each pupil brings with him (or her) valuable dollars from the state.

"For enrollment, we've done as much due diligence as we can right now," said Billheimer, "and we have to wait and see how many kids show up. That affects everything."

If the numbers do fall in place where expected, the district's cash reserves would increase from about 3 percent last year to about 4.5 percent this year.

Billheimer also reported that the district is spending about 80.8 percent of its budget on salaries and benefits, putting it close to a "tipping point" that necessitates cuts in other departments.

"There's a tipping point here," he said. "If you're around 82 percent, you can 'turn upside down' fast. You should be at 79-80 percent. We're really kind of on the cusp with our salary and benefit costs."

Board member Matt Stegman said this sounded like about the right spot to be in:

"I think it's very important to us to be as competitive as we can be in salaries and benefits without reaching that tipping point," Stegman commented.

Be Car Care Aware™

Hot Weather The Cause Of Car-Battery Trouble

(NAPS)—Here's some hot news for car owners: Summer is the season for major car-battery problems.

Virtually everyone who's been through a harsh winter is familiar with the annoyance of a "dead" battery and the need for a jump start. So it may surprise many to know that it's heat, not cold, that shortens battery life.

According to the Car Care Council, the average life of a battery is 3½ years—even shorter in warmer climates. That's because excessive heat and overcharging are the two main reasons for shortened battery life. Heat causes battery fluid to evaporate, which damages the internal structure of the battery. A malfunctioning component in the charging system, usually the voltage regulator, allows too high a charging rate. That's slow death for a battery.

Statistics from a recent National Car Care Month inspection campaign show battery cables, clamps and terminals were found to need maintenance in 17 percent of the vehicles and 9 percent of the batteries were not properly held down.

To get the most life out of a battery, the Car Care Council suggests the following:

- Be sure the electrical system is charging at the correct rate; overcharging can damage a battery as quickly as undercharging.
- If your battery is the type that needs to be topped off, check it regularly, especially in hot weather. Add distilled water when necessary.
- Always replace a battery with one that's rated at least as high as the one originally specified.
- Keep the top of the battery clean. Dirt becomes a conductor, which drains battery power. Further, as corrosion accumulates on battery terminals it becomes an insulator, inhibiting current flow.

The Car Care Council is the source of information for the Be Car Care Aware consumer education campaign promoting the benefits of regular vehicle care, maintenance and repair to consumers. To obtain a free service interval schedule and Car Care Guide, visit www.carcare.org.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Amnesty for whale watchers

"Open letter to Mayor Cabaldon, authored May 19)

I am sorry to make your acquaintance under these circumstances. On May 16, 2007 I was traveling west on Lake Washington Drive and made a left-hand turn into an area that people were using to park while they walked to get a glimpse of the whales. No sooner had I turned in than I was approached by a motorcycle cop from the West Sacramento Police Department -- ticket book in hand. I was told that I had made an illegal left-hand turn and he issued me a citation to that effect.

I accepted the ticket with good grace and looked at it as the price of admission. I understand that admission to Sea World in Vallejo is at least as expensive as the bail on the ticket. Since we rarely get cetacean visitors here in West Sacramento, it was probably worth it, because this novel event is probably the greatest single attractive nuisance in the country right now. West Sacramento is getting more positive national press than we would if one of our local doctors had found a cure for flatulence.

In the broader scheme of things, I don't really mind a cop writing me a ticket -- it's kind of like getting a prostate exam from a doctor when you're over forty. It's going to happen -- count on it. What I do object to is that while the WSPD was busy writing tickets they failed to take appropriate action to guide and control traffic and to serve the best interests of the public. That failure has to be viewed as a fundamental breech in their fiduciary duties. No one is served when the local police allow a carnival-like atmosphere to prevail and view the event as nothing more than a major fundraising event.

After I viewed the whales for awhile, I came back to where I was parked and observed the same officer writing ticket after ticket. There was almost an endless stream of Southport residents (we are the ones who would naturally approach from the south) being issued citations for doing the same thing that I did. I stuck around for about 30 minutes to watch. Officer Friendly was ecstatic -- probably the effect of his latest feeding frenzy. It was almost like watching a crocodile take wildebeest during the annual migration on the Serengeti. I watched him write at least four tickets in 30 minutes. I would say if he didn't have a record day by the time it was over, it was a very close. How like a small town is that? When Andy finds out, he's going to have to, once again, smooth things over with Floyd, Gomer, and the other town folk.

I have enclosed photos. Notice that the news crew didn't get a ticket, nor did the police car that make the same illegal turn.

The following day, the police were more prepared and brought more than just their ticket books to the scene. In addition to the signage and candlesticks, they actually had an officer or two directing traffic. It was almost like we were a real city and knew how to handle such things. I should not be so sarcastic. After all, who would have thunk it, those crazy cetaceans.

Finally, if it is within your power, I ask that you either rescind, or have rescinded all the tickets that were issued by this officer on May 16, 2007. This is not who we are as a community. And it is certainly not the image or spirit that we want to convey to our family, friends, or the world.

Spanish TV

The reality in 2007 is that the Spanish TV media has become one of the most powerful institutions of communications worldwide, especially here in California for the growing Hispanic population. This phenomenon includes news, sports, music, movies, sitcoms and award shows and is a source of pride for all members of the Spanish culture.

The other positive side of Spanish TV media could be viewed as helping break down racism, discrimination and prejudice and being instrumental in bringing about a "Rainbow of Colors" in the 21st century!

Traffic changes needed

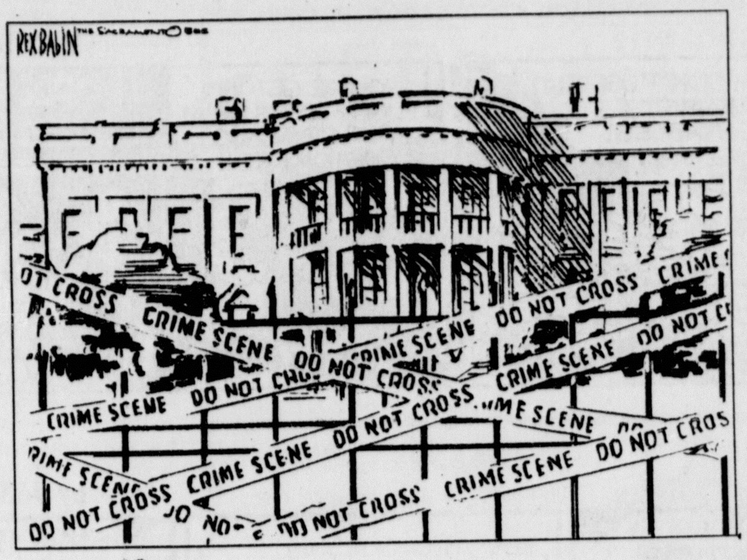

On June 26th I was walking north on Jefferson Boulevard. While waiting for a signal to change, several vehicles made fast right turns without stopping as they drove upon the Pioneer Bridge towards Sacramento. Shocking as it was for the moment, it wasn't that different from the northbound traffic on Harbor Boulevard turning right onto West Capital Avenue -- without stopping.

Thinking Jefferson was still State Highway 275, I later called Cal-Trans to complain and was told that all that is left of 275 is the Tower Bridge! Except for the Tower Bridge, the state has transferred ownership and responsibility of 275 to the City of West Sacramento.

In terms of Jefferson Boulevard before the Pioneer Bridge, we need to remove or dramatically trim the large plant now covering over half the sidewalk, and no doubt obscuring vision of north bounders turning right, and also change the pedestrian route so we walk across Jefferson before we reach the bridge.

Finally, we should restore some midday YoloBus service on Jefferson Boulevard.

GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

"Fantastic Four: Rise of the Silver Surfer"

Running time: 92 minutes
MPAA rating: PG

"Fantastic Four: Rise of the Silver Surfer" doesn't suck as much as 2005's "Fantastic Four," but that's because the sequel is 20 minutes shorter. Less time. Less suck. I didn't have time to work out Suck Percentages or Suck Ratios. I'll leave that to the nerds.

Between the bad acting, lousy story, egregious product placement and the fact that it takes nearly two-thirds of the film to get to the action, director Tim Story is guaranteed to enrage comic-book fans and insult the average moviegoer.

To give you an idea of the product placement, when the Fantasticar finally makes its appearance, it turns out to be an advertisement for Dodge. The legendary flying car has DODGE stamped over the front grill. The Human Torch actually asks, "Does it have a hemi?" To comic fans, this is the equivalent of the Batmobile being a Toyota Prius.

Jessica Alba's portrayal of Sue Storm (aka Invisible Girl) is positively laughable. I can't believe anyone takes her seriously as an actress. Whenever she activates her force-field powers, Alba cocks her head like a confused puppy and strikes a pose like a bad street mime trapped in one of those Invisible Boxes. Alba supplies all comic relief in this movie, albeit unintentionally.

The plot of the movie revolves around the impending visit by Galactus, a giant being that eats planets. In the comics, Galactus is an immortal. Gigantic. He's got a huge head and a bitchin' cool helmet. Galactus doesn't even appear in the movie. Instead we get a lame-looking Space Tornado.

The Silver Surfer, whose job it is to prepare a planet for Galactus, is the best character in the movie. In fact, he's the hero of the film. HE saves the day. The Fantastic Four don't have a single victory in the film. How screwed up a filmmaker does Tim Story have to be to make a movie where the heroes aren't the heroes?

If you absolutely must see "Rise of the Silver Surfer," wait a month or three. It should be on DVD by then and you can Netflix it. Otherwise, avoid this film like you would the Kiss of Life from Stan Lee.

Silence of the Songbirds
by Bridget Stutchbury
(Walker and Company, $24.95)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

The silent spring predicted by Rachel Carson in her 1962 bestseller could be closer than we imagined. The lethal cocktail of pesticides, climate change and deforestation has halved the songbird population during the past four decades. Each spring marks even more of a decline.

Bridget Stutchbury, a research associate at the Smithsonian Institution, says that without songbirds, our forests face more insect infestations and our trees, flowers and gardens lose a crucial link in their reproductive cycle.

To back up her position, Stutchbury tracked the migratory patterns of birds on their 6,000-mile journey from the tropics to North America. Her findings were alarming. As she puts it, the metaphor of the canary in a coalmine has never been more apt. Songbird depopulation signals an ecosystem breakdown stemming directly from human intervention. This is, she says, not just a North American crisis, it is truly global.

There are several threats to songbirds in addition to pesticides, she points out. Tropical forests are being cleared at the highest rate in the history of mankind, and if forest loss continues at its present rate, within a few human generations more than 25 percent of the world's birds will be lost — forever.

Stutchbury predicts that we have already lost half of the songbirds that filled the skies a mere 40 years ago, and adds that an additional 12 percent face extinction in the near future.

This is an excellent work by a distinguished scientist. The author is convinced that many of the threats must be addressed through both local and international policy initiatives. Individual citizens can also do their part to protect and maintain the songbird population. By working together, Stutchbury hopes this alarming trend can be reversed.

Q. My favorite do-it-yourself type show is "Creative Juice" on HGTV. Can you tell me a little about the hosts and how they got started? — A Reader, via e-mail

A. Cathie Filian and Steve Piacenza are the Emmy-nominated hosts of this fun craft show that airs daily on HGTV and the DIY Network. Cathie and Steve met while they were both working on the Paramount Studios lot, and in 2001 decided to open a store together across the street. The store displayed artwork and crafts, and the pair also taught craft classes. Pooling $3,000, they decided to shoot a pilot of their unique kind of crafting that they could shop around to the networks. Thus, "Creative Juice" was born. Their book, "Creative Juice," was just released and is available at your local bookstore.

Tom Selleck

Q. Tom Selleck had a great series of movies about Police Chief Jesse Stone. It looked like it could be a really good TV series. What happened? — Bill P., via e-mail

A. Tom Selleck made quite a few movies in the "Stone Cold" series, the most recent being "Jesse Stone: Sea Change." The "Stone Cold" movies have attracted a lot of big names, such as Mimi Rogers, Kathy Baker, Sean Young and William Devane, to name only a few. Any talk of a "Stone Cold" series would definitely have to wait. Tom will have his hands full for a while, as he is replacing James Caan as the head owner of the Montecito Casino on season five of the popular NBC drama, "Las Vegas."

Q. Is actor James Stacy still alive? I know he was in a motorcycle accident. I haven't heard much about him recently. — A Reader in Florida

A. James Stacy was best-known for his role in Western TV series "Lancer." In 1973, while James and his girlfriend were riding on his motorcycle, they were struck by a drunk driver. His girlfriend died and James lost his left arm and leg. As he recovered, his ex-wife, Connie Stevens, and many of their Hollywood friends held a celebrity gala and raised $118,000 toward his medical expenses.

In the years that followed, fellow actors, such as Kirk Douglas, created parts especially for James' handicap, and he continued to work up until about 1990. He appeared in five episodes of "Wiseguy" until he was reportedly too drunk to work effectively. He spiraled into alcohol abuse and depression, and in 1995 pled guilty to the felony charge of molesting an 11-year-old girl and was sentenced to six years in prison. He was released in 2001 and is reportedly living a quiet life with his family.

HEALTH ALERT!

DVT: What You Should Know

(NAPS)—No matter where you like to vacation or what activities you enjoy, the fact remains you have to get there and back. For many, this could mean long hours in a cramped plane, car or train. With this comes the risk of blood clots.

DVT, or deep vein thrombosis, is a blood clot that can develop when sitting for an extended period of time. The condition is serious, potentially fatal and very difficult to diagnose by external examination. Symptoms, if they occur, might include muscle tension in the lower leg, a dull ache or sudden painful tear, or a cramp in the calf with swelling and elevated body temperature. "Research shows that even those in better than average health are at risk," said Paul Amatangelo, compression hosiery specialist, AmesWalker.com.

DVT can strike any long-distance traveler regardless of physical condition, age or gender.

To help decrease your risk, Paul suggests wearing high-quality Microfiber Firm Support Travel Socks. Graduated compression legwear, like these travel socks, applies decreasing pressure from the ankle to the knee, forcing blood to the leg's deep veins, reducing pooling of blood and maintaining proper flow rate of blood to the heart and lungs.

For many long-distance travelers, compression legwear can be a healthy step in the right direction. For more information, visit www.AmesWalker.com.

Fireworks: generally illegal in city of West Sacramento

Future uncertain for city's canceled annual 'BridgeFest' fireworks show

Officer Jason Winger of the West Sacramento Police Department reminds city residents that all private fireworks are illegal in West Sacramento. This includes those certified as "safe and sane" by the state fire marshal's office.

Violations are a misdemeanor, although possession of some kinds of more potent fireworks can bring felony charges.

To turn in illegal fireworks for proper disposal, call the police department at 372-3375 or bring them to a local fire station. The same non-emergency number can be used to request that an officer be dispatched to the scene of fireworks use.

The only authorized fireworks display in West Sacramento for this Independence Day holiday has been planned for a July 3 River Cats game at Raley Field. The city's annual "BridgeFest" celebration and fireworks display has been canceled, as the event has "outgrown" its turf on the Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge, said city officials.

An annual fireworks show in Sacramento's "pocket" area has been canceled, but an after-dark show is still planned for Cal Expo in Sacramento.

In addition, he also earned credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Webb is the son of Dulcinea Webb and Thomas Webb, both of West Sacramento, and is a 2006 graduate of Yolo High.

Sulpizio now with security firm

The former director of the Port of Sacramento has found a new job in West Sacramento's private sector.

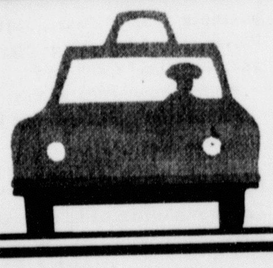

John G. Sulpizio has been hired as senior vice president and chief operating officer of All Phase Security, Inc., said to company president and C.E.O. Ken Garrett.

"John brings many years of hands-on management experience in complex working environments to All Phase at a time of great growth potential for us," said Garrett in a press release. "John will be instrumental in taking All Phase to its next plateau of growth."

The security company, founded by Garrett and Martin Flatley in 1994, has 250 employees.

Sulpizio, a West Sacramento resident, served as the top executive of the Port of Sacramento until the city of West Sacramento recently took effective control of the facility. Now, the port is managed by Mike Luken of the city's redevelopment agency.
